The Truth at Last.

The question heretofore referred to in grave yard, after much contrariety of views among our old settlers, appears to be at Malone's place and worked for George Webb, at whose home he died, about 1867. Mr. Brown helped dig the grave, could not remember the name, but referred us to Mr. Webb who now lives near Kyle, to whom we addressed a postal and received the following reply: Existing reply:

KYLE, Texas, April 26, 1886.

Dran Sin:—The person referred to in your burying ground is George Browder. You can address a brother, (Jackson Browder), at Orangeville, Fannin County. Tex. Yours &c., G. C, Wenn.

This would seem to settle the question. Mr. Brown says at the time the grave was dug there was no fence around the ground He is not sure as to who placed the iron railing around the grave, but is inclined to think it was done by the Masons, of whom he thinks the deceased was a member. The difference of opinion about the matter affords a good illustration as to how the truth is apt to fade out in less

This railing has been down for a couple of years or so, but yet lies on the ground near by. We will mail a copy of the paper to the brother of the deceased.

From New Braunfels.

A friend writes us from the metropolis of Comal that a festal time has been prevailing their recently. He says there were five dances at dancing halls within that many miles of New Braunfels on Sunday night. Five miles from town on the San Antonio road is a store, saloon, and the largest dancing hall in the county. The proprietor is doing "a land-office business," through the patronage of the boys and men of the vicinity. The field for the salcon business is pretty-well occupied in Comal, so much so that our correspondent states that he was frequently inquired of by the young men if they could not find room to put up another bar in San Marcos. He adds:

The fine healthy school children had a

Hunter. Since the decline and fall of the notorious Black Elephant, the FREE PRESS has received several subscriptious from Hunter. There is no reason why we should not have a good large list there, nor why the place should not b come a nice country village. A promi-nent citizen of the vicinity informs us that there is a good deal of business done there. He says its moral status is not yet unimpeachable, but they are striving to make it so. In furtherence of this idea it is pro-posed to apply to the legislature to have it annexed to Hays county. By a slight rectification of the county line this could be done without robbing Comal of any of her Teachers Convention.

The regular meeting of the Hays County our columns as to the name of the occupant Teachers Convention met in San Marcos, of the grave formerly surrounded by an April 23rd and 24th 1886. The President, fron railing, near the entrance to the old Judge Ed. R. Kone, presided. Teachers present: Misses Laura Wilcox, May Joyce, Jennie Fry, Aunie Bruce, Mrs. M. P. Foster, last authoritativly settled. Mr. John S.
Brown, of this vicinity, recently informed us that the person referred to was a young man who lived, or farmed, on James L.

Mrs. Bell, Mrs. A. Duncan: Professors R. G. Horshey, G. W. Droke, O. L. Whipple, A. J. Libly, W. M. Wyatt, Prof. Cap, S. M. Moore, J. H. Bishop, Lincoln, J. W. Marshall, John Pritchett, Joe Pritchett, J. J. Anderson and Chas. E. Williams. Also Misses Carrie Franklin and Carrie Belvin.

On motion, the address on School Organzation was deferred until the next meeting. Prof. G. W. Droke, of Coronal Institute addressed the Convention upon the subject of "School Management." His speech was overflowing with good sense and humor He maintained that the entire burden of school discipline should not fall upon the teacher; parents and trustees should extend sympathy and cooperation. Saturday, 9:30 a.m. Prof. Horsley, of Dripping Springs, requested to be excused from leading in the discussion of the sub-ject assigned him. Granted by the Con-

The subject, "How shall we interest par ents in the education of their children," was introduced by Prof. O. L. Whipple, of Science Hall. He pictured with much elo-quence and great feeling the indifference of parents and consequent deplorable neglect of the educational welfare of the children of our land. Nearly all present participa-ted in the discussion and various plans were advised, Prof. John L. Pritchett, in a speech re splendent with gems of practical thought, condemned school theatricals and entertainments given simply to please and attract To visit parents was considered generally impracticable on account of the many duties demanding the teacher's time, and therefore that parents should perform their duty by visiting the schools to encourage the children, and to confer with the teacher. 2:30 p. m. Prof. O. L. Whipple gave an interesting and instructive lecture, Methods in advanced Reading. His methods were nnanimously approved.

Prof. Chas. E. Williams led in the discussion of the subject "Teaching as a Profession." He maintained that teaching being a process is only an art, that the qualitative stage of an Educational Science is just being arrived at, and that an Educational Science can only be established when we shall formulate the principles involved.
He called upon teachers to search for the principles underlying their work, in order that the profession may take its proper rank among the learned professions. Among the evils which retard the advancement of the profession, he enumerates incompetent teachers and examiners, and then paid a glowing tribute to the true and earnest teachers who have devoted their life work to their high
